BLOOMINGTON

Abundant are fond memories of time spent with the Bloomington crew. For some reason, the site of Paul and Rick mooning everyone in anatomy comes to mind. How about hypergonad man swinging in the window of Myers Hall? We'll not soon forget Joe Galdun dancing in the cage at Mars, or Mark, Kevin, Nick, and Terry disguised as Kiss at the class Halloween party. Jamie's lips of red delivered angel's kisses. Greta and Tony danced, and danced, and are still dancing. Scheidler attempted to pelvis every woman in anatomy. Jen ran, ran, and ran some more. Chris pirated the seas. Sue and Jerrells, "it's spinning," (the heart that is). Where are their ski poles anyway? Jim, is he still trying to cut weight for wrestling? There is Jason, face down in somebody's yard. Tazim is chasing lemurs at the zoo. Double D partied with the boys at Woodstock '94. Amy took South Padre by storm. Young showed New Orleans his stuff, Mardi Gras '95. Matt led us through it all and has galloped into the sunset with Critter. Spooje will be psycho-analyzing all of this in twenty years. Watch out Amsterdam, Viren's on his way!

EVANSVILLE

THE EVANSVILLE CENTER: Putting knowledge into practice

Many interesting phrases echoed through the halls of the Evansville Center. "Go big or go home" and "I'll go alone ... what was trump?" were often overheard at the Euchre tables. The "sugar shuffle" was integral to Biochemistry and that slide illustrating La Place's law always reappeared during Physiology lecture. In the gross anatomy lab, the strategy of removing an unidentifiable structure (to avoid that inevitable tag around it at test time) became practiced. In Pathology, two to four trays of slides would pass before our eyes. And who could forget clusters? What a stroke of genius to combine all of our tests for the month into a time span of two days! Clusters, of course, made post-clusters gatherings at Kipplees a necessity. Gatherings were also found on lunch hour around the Euchre tables or playing Ultimate Frisbee. Whether we chose the Evansville Center or a twist of fate sent us there, we all grew closer and became friends. — Patricia Godeke

INDIANAPOLIS

The largest of the campuses of IUSOM, Indy gathered together more than half of the graduating Class of 1997. It was a diverse collection of thinkers, drinkers and just plain characters.

Who could forget the first time we sat in Med Sci. The brown sponge walls and wooden seats made it evident that we were the jewel of the IUSOM crown. It was the arena where men such as Hurrican Harris presided. With a polite "good morning" and a sip from his coffee cup we were consumed by a torrential downpour of Carbon atoms, enzymes and reactions. It was the same setting where Dr. Bauer Created Apathy and where we first met Angel. A strange cross between Fonzie and Eddie Munster, Angel sparked the great sunglasses debate which may never truly be resolved. Med Sci was also the birthplace of bugcharts, and the vision of Dr. Rosenthal in a shiny gym suit glorifying Cholera cots is a chilling reminder of our passage through Micro. And the great baseball cap escapade made us all quite aware of the neuroses of our Neuroanatomists.

Emerson Hall had two resounding features: comfortable seats to sleep in and a balcony which provided an easy escape from a boring lectures. It is where anatomy started and we came to realize that drinking 2-3 Pepsi's in a 90 minute period provided enough caffeine load to make you want to palpate all your organs. Histo provided us with two unforgettable phrases "Chess Nuts Boasting in a Open Foyer" and "Point and Shoot". From this location we also took wise words from Sr. William Osler, the patron Saint of Pharmacology, and learned important travel tips from Pathology like remembering to always pack oxygen when going to Lake Nyos.

Through all this mayhem we had one saving grace ... the note takers. Their greed for money provided us with 1000's of pages of notes and a few things we'll always remember: "sleep loose", "oatmeal is my brain" and "P = MD".

But it was not all studying at Indy. Post-test Monday nights we poured out to Broadriple and spent many a night at OPTs, BW3s and the Vogue, topping it all off with a burrito the size of your head at La Bamba's. Even when we were studying in the library the Red-Headed Librarian provided a soothing distraction for many of our eyes.

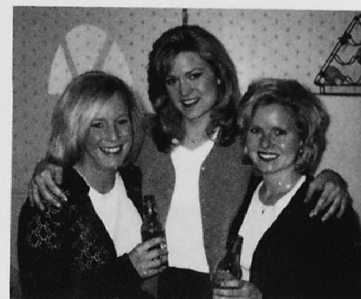

In all, the Indy campus gave each of us something we'll never forget. We made good friends, had lots of laughs and even managed to learn a little Medicine.

MUNCIE

How was life at the Muncie Center for Medical Education? Quite honestly, it was different ... Housed on the 2nd and 3rd floors of the old nursing building, the MCME group was a very diverse group of sixteen, then fourteen, students from all walks of life. With less than half of our class coming straight out of college into medical school, the backgrounds and pathways of our class brought levity to our small campus. With backgrounds in teaching, theology, engineering, biology, economics, psychology, nursing, and linguistics, the door was open for many diverse discussion topics.

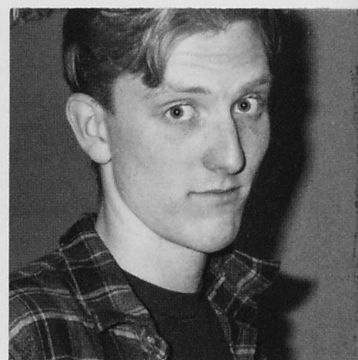

Despite our varied backgrounds, the two biggest topics of choice were euchre and pool! The MCME euchre craze was of astronomical proportions — before class, between classes, after classes, and even on weekends and holidays! Or course, what else besides a little competition between friends? Now the whole euchre craze began early on during our first year, the power of the billiard table came about during our second year as our class moved up in the world — from the second to the third floor — heretofore, relatively unknown territory. Study breaks and lunch breaks came easily when there was always something going on.

Another area of extracurricular interest was our class touch football games ... several times each year we allowed ourselves to vent frustrations and just “get down to business”. It really never really mattered, at least in the long run, who won each time — it just mattered at the moment.

Lastly, we would like to mention the famous annual Lee Engstrom party — hours of food, drink, and entertainment — all free and just for us ... Also, the class wishes to thank P. Stafford whose legible class notes and undying diligence allowed most of us to be here today!

Murder capital of the world, gunfire, grand auto theft and the Jackson Five are images that come to the minds of most people when Gary is mentioned. However, to the students at the Northwest campus, Gary was much more. Gary was home for two years. There fifteen students participated in an innovative problem-based curriculum while also enjoying the best "the region" had to offer ... all the amenities of Merriville (Rookies and late-night Denny's), shopping, dining, and partying in Chicago, sunny afternoon trips to the Indiana Dunes and, of course, chili, egg, bacon, and cheeseburgers at That-a-Burger.

SOUTH BEND

On the first day of medical school, I entered Hagger Hall, walked down a flight of stairs into the basement and saw the place where I, along with my classmates, were to spend the next two years. I never realized just how much time would be spent in that basement. The first week of school was marred only by the "tainted taco salad" that knocked out half of our class and had some running out of anatomy lab looking worse than the cadavers. We were greeted by "Touchdown Jesus" and soon learned the tradition of Notre Dame football. Our first year, tailgates were held at Ted/Fred's Med Shed, but after he and his shed moved to Indy we were left to carry on the tradition, and boy did we ever! Ever famous is the quote from Brian at the first tailgate of our second year — "I am NOT obtunded." The tailgates and life on Notre Dame's campus provided some time off from studying. On almost any given day you could be sure to find Chad running around South Bend somewhere, or find Ronnie, Matt, Erv, and I trying to hit each other with tennis balls. I think we would all agree that the SBCME was a good place to spend our first two years of medical school. We all made lifelong friends in Hagger Hall and also learned a bit about medicine in the process. — Andrea Bolka

TERRE HAUTE

The Terre Haute Center for Medical Education, Class of 1997

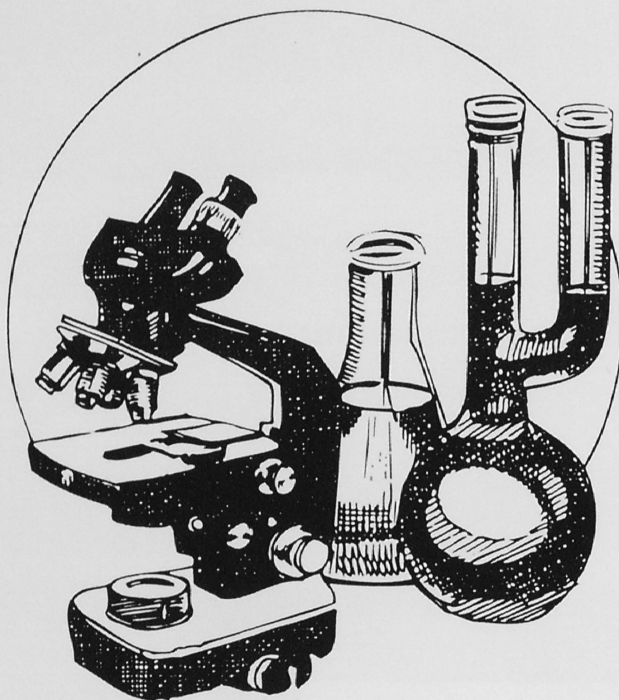

We were certainly a heterogeneous group, but one that surely learned to live and learn from each other and most importantly enjoy each other. That is what we did the best!!!

Who would dare forget our first year Q2 week tradition. It would start generally every other Sunday before our dreaded test day (more like bombardment). Around 6 or 7 in the evening, one by one we would start rolling into the center ... after a few minutes of chatting (oh, O.K., maybe it really was longer than a few minutes ...) We would sit and start studying. Not too long after that (we could not sit in front of books too long) we would start quizzing each other. The first bunch were stimulating and challenging ... but as the night progressed, the questions would turn trivial and, why not, quite ridiculous. Darren and Joe certainly won the award for the most obscure and trivial questions of them all ... And who would think of forgetting our outings to the Bally Hoo (refers to the most popular Hossian College hangout) the night after the tests ... By the end of the year we all had become part of the "Bally Crowd", the shy ones in the group, those who did not drink, those who had better things to do, all ... We would stumble in soon after the tests were over (that is brain overheat induced ataxia), and a few hours later we would again stumble out ... Hmmm!!! (This time however, was more of EtOH induced ataxia ... I think ... I can not recall very well ...).

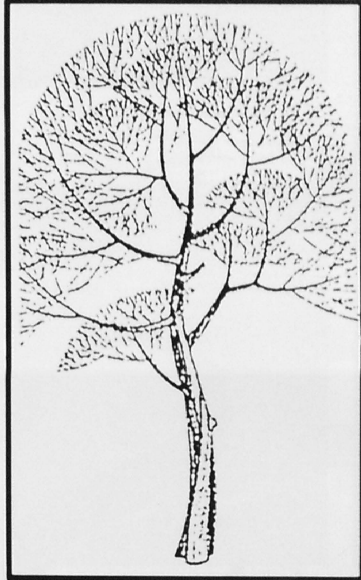

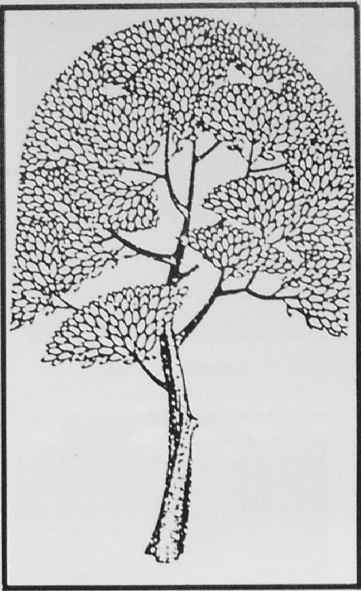

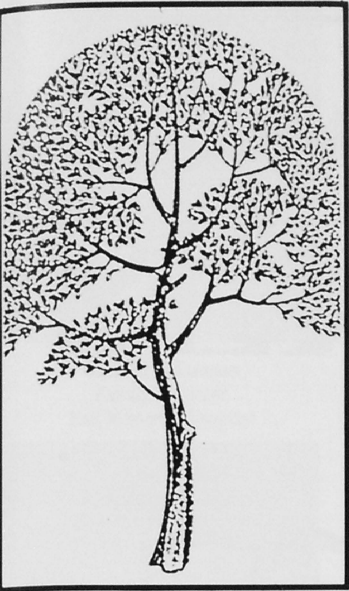

And somehow we all made it into second year ... What was our class activity??? Hackey Sac ... Yeap folks ... you heard it right ... every morning, afternoon, class break, every time we had we would sac on the hospital hallway ... We got in a lot of trouble since for a while nobody could explain the black streaks found on the walls of the student area ... and the fallen ceiling tiles ... how come the student area was the only area with this problem??? But our sacking desires were so strong that we got everybody involved, even the girls joined in (who I might add were not too affectionate towards our game) ... and even some of our professors and doctors too ... and that, that was really worth seeing!!!

To all of us, the best of luck ... and wherever we end up, I am sure we will all fondly remember those two years we spent at Terre Haute, the fun we had and the friends we made.

It just seemed like
Taking the names
you've trusted for nearly 100 years.
And bringing them together for the next century.
Building something stronger.
Smarter.
More enduring.

Methodist, IU and Riley.

Individually, we were good.

Together, we're doing
more of the little things.

Better than before.

The people of Clarian Health.

What we're doing today will change the face of health care in Indiana.

For you.

The advertisement for Crystal Catering features a large, elegant glass filled with a sparkling beverage, possibly champagne, as a background. The text is arranged in a clean, professional layout. At the top, the company name 'Crystal Catering' is written in a large, elegant script font, with 'a division of Crystal Food Services' in a smaller, sans-serif font below it. Below this, the tagline 'We Bring You The Best' is written in a large, bold, serif font. The main body of text describes the company's tradition of fine dining and its ability to create custom menus for various events. The pictures in this yearbook represent a brief look at a time in our past when life was simple. While we were going through it we couldn't wait for it to be over but now that it is over we realize how special that time really was. Over the years when you flip through these pages and look at the faces, remember where you came from, what it took to get you there, and take pride in being part of the IUSOM Class of 1997. Good Luck to you all!

A special thanks to Adele Morano and Eve Gill and all of you who submitted pictures. Without your efforts this yearbook would not have been possible.

Your Yearbook Editors,

Jennifer Dawes
